From the Board President

Chris Lenois

It is not an overstatement to say BCTV faced an existential threat this past year like no other in its 40+ year history. If you are not yet up to speed on the rules change recently approved by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that drastically cuts funding to Public Access stations, I encourage you to go to brattleborotv.org and read the November 27, 2018 blog post “FCC Threatens Community Television,” or watch the video from the “Future of Community Media” forum on January 3, 2019.

What I am here to tell you is that I am extremely proud to be part of an organization and community that has responded as swiftly and as positively to the circumstances as ours has.

For me, it begins with a Board of Directors that reacted with urgency but without panic. During our meetings — which included a day-long, moderated retreat devoted specifically to the issue — we approached options with a strategic lens focused on addressing the immediate and long-term ramifications. We feel the solutions we’ve devised, which you’ll learn more about in this report, keeps BCTV sustainable at its current level while instilling mechanisms that allow the organization to adapt.

We were also proactive in raising awareness and promoting advocacy for our cause locally, statewide, and even nationally. Members of Congress and the state legislature have been sympathetic to our cause. Funding requests to select boards and citizens for the town meetings we cover were approved with an understanding of the important role public access plays in government transparency and covering local issues in rural areas. Individuals and organizations have begun to step forth with financial support for the services and shows they value.

At the root of these decisions was our unanimous belief in the abilities of BCTV’s staff, field producers and volunteers, and the quality of programming you’ll find on our channels and web site, much of which is made by members of this community.

Even though we are in the early stages of implementing some new initiatives, the response from all of you has been heartening. This community, working together in the spirit of preserving local access to media, is capable of meeting these challenges. We look forward to working with you toward achieving that reality.

From the Executive Director

Cor Trowbridge

FY19 was the Year of The Threat. The threat that got the most attention was from the Federal Communications Commission. Cable corporations pressured the FCC to change the 1984 Cable Act, the legislation which established a stable source of funding for public access TV from franchise fees. The proposal was to change definitions within the Act such that cable providers can charge costs of required in-kind services against the fees from local cable subscribers that they collect and pass through to stations like ours. When this was proposed in the fall of 2018, BCTV and other stations rallied to collect and file letters with the FCC opposing the change. Across the country, almost 10,000 letters were filed, similar to the protest against dismantling net neutrality. BCTV contacted our Congressional delegation, all of whom signed formal letters of opposition along with 45 of their colleagues on both sides of the aisle. BCTV's board of directors held a board retreat in January to strategize alternate sources of funding, we held a Voices Live! Forum on the future of community media, and our local media partners did their part to spread the word. Despite these efforts, the proposal was passed with an effective date of 9/26/19.

Cor's post-radio-show selfie after being on WVEW-FM with host Jim Maxwell talking about threats to community media in January 2019.

At the same time, there was a serious threat on the state level, in the form of Comcast's lawsuit against the State in protest of its CPG renewal conditions. In January 2017, the Vermont Public Utilities Commission had sided with our stations in requiring Comcast to provide PEG channels with access to the interactive program guide, among other conditions. Comcast protested the imposition of these conditions in federal court. Our statewide membership organization, the Vermont Access Network (VAN), participated in the lawsuit to advocate for our stations and the public. The case was settled in September 2019 with mixed results.

In light of these threats to the funding that provides 80% of our revenues, as well as Comcast's challenge to the state's authority to impose conditions in the public interest, BCTV and VAN members went to the statehouse in February to bring the issue to the attention of the Vermont Legislature. The result was the establishment of a legislative committee to study alternative methods of funding for PEG channels. We are waiting to see the ultimate effects of the FCC ruling and for the legislative committee's recommendations.

Last year at the Producer Party in October, I spoke about the gradual funding decline created by cord-cutting and the rise of online viewing, a trend that began to hit BCTV's bottom line last year. I also explained what I knew about the FCC's proposal and that it could mean the end of community television nationwide. In June, we gathered to announce the BCTV board's strategies for facing these threats, including changes to our membership and production fees to reflect the value of our services. The response from select boards, donors and members has been overwhelmingly positive and gratifying.

Meanwhile, our dedicated staff and volunteers produced 1200 hours of local content and 1300 local programs. We signed a contract renewal with Southern Vermont Cable with increased revenues, and took home three major awards from the Alliance for Community Media, one for Overall Excellence. I can't tell you how this year will end, but I can assure you that BCTV will continue to fight hard to maintain this station for our towns and residents and to preserve it as a resource for freedom of expression, information, and governmental transparency.

Treasurer's Report

Jim Verzino

In FY19, BCTV was subject to fiscal threats at the federal level from the FCC, at the state level from Comcast, and at the local level from cord-cutting. To prepare for future decreases, BCTV tightened its belt on the expense side and compensated for the downturn in franchise fees with production services and donations.

Donors and Underwriters

While BCTV has been supported primarily by fees from local cable viewers, we have not competed with other nonprofits for fundraising dollars, which has benefitted the entire community. As that funding source is weakened and declines, we will increasingly turn to members, donors and sponsors for support.

Volunteer Hours

BCTV tracks volunteer hours annually to measure the organization’s overall contribution to the community. Producers’ time to create local programming is estimated below.

Types of Volunteering	FY19 Hours
Crewing for BCTV productions	120
Board of Directors	400
Interns	146
Producing: Field Work	756
Producing: Editing	2480
Producing: Studio	944
Total Volunteer Hours	4846

Volunteers and Interns

The volunteers listed below contributed to BCTV by serving on the board, being a crew member, hosting studio interviews, or providing commentary for live events. Interns edit “orphan projects,” digitize archives, operate cameras, and create their own projects.

Right: BCTV’s crew and USA Nordic joined forces and livestreamed the two-day Harris Hill Ski Jump to thousands of global viewers.

Video Production Training

BCTV offers training year-round on an individual basis for Camera Basics, Introduction to Digital Editing, and Studio Production. This has proven to be the most effective because instructors can tailor the training for experience and learning style. Trainees have staff support at BCTV as they work on their project.

Fiscal Year	# Trainings	# Certified
17-18	16	26
18-19	23	23

Youth Video Camp

This summer's week-long Video & Tech Camp hosted 14 youth video-makers aged 9-12 who produced two short movies based on the 'Hero's Journey' theme: "The Chronicles of Light" and "The Magic Rock." Along with taking an assignment on the field crew for the scene where the hero is transformed by training with a zen/combat master, campers learned camera skills, video editing, audio, special effects, and green screening. The entire BCTV facility and staff are dedicated to the video camp for a week, and it's a highlight of our year.

Equipment & Facilities Use

BCTV's field camera kits include the Canon Vixia, XA10, XA20 and XA15. We have one DSLR, the Canon 80D with interchangeable lenses, for staff and producer use. Our new ability to track with asset management software shows an average of 8 uses of equipment or facilities per day the station is open. Camera kits are typically checked out for two days.

FY19 Equipment & Facility Use	# Uses	Volunteer	Staff	# Hours	Hrs/Use	% Uses
Camera Kits (11 Field Kits)	783	189	586	31,567	40.7	39

Programming Hours

BCTV produces 1200 hours of local content annually, which is equivalent to the output of much larger stations. Locally-created programs constitute approximately half of what you see on BCTV, measured both by duration (hours and minutes) and by count (number of programs). Vermont Media Exchange is BCTV’s primary source of imported programming, which carries programs produced by community media stations across Vermont and shared through a statewide network.

Hours of First Run Programming	18-19 Hours: Mins: Secs	Change from 17-18	% Total
Channel 8 – Local	553:38:39	5.10%	21
Channel 10 – Local	701:13:16	7.80%	26.6
Total Local Programming	1254:51:55	6.70%	47.5
Channel 8 – Imported	684:34:29	1.00%	25.9

Total Imported Programming	1385:07:05	4.60%	52.5
TOTAL	2639:59:00	5.60%	100

Program Count

BCTV volunteers and staff produced 1364 local shows in FY19 or 49% of this year's aired programs.

Number of Programs Aired	2018-19	% Change from 17-18	% total
Local	1364	10	49
Imported	553	6.3	19.8
VMX	869	8.4	31.2
TOTAL:	2786	8.7	100

Another statistic we track is the amount of staff-produced programming. Channel 8 programming is primarily produced by volunteers, whereas the majority of Channel 10 programs are staff-produced.
