

Annual Report to Members

FY20: July 1, 2019 - June 30, 2020

BCTV provided the technical backbone for 'Arts Unite Windham' in August 2020. Led by Next Stage Arts Project, BCTV's crew of videographers streamed performances live from five arts venues over four hours, adding prerecorded video from two additional venues. The event raised $8,000 for local social justice organizations.

From the Board President

Chris Lenois

The advent of the coronavirus pandemic literally bisected this past year into two distinct halves. From the time I wrote this message a year ago through mid-March, BCTV was feeling out the financial impact of newly implemented Federal Communications Commission (FCC) rules that curtailed revenues from cable providers. At that six-month mark, it looked as if the board's careful review and adjustment of revenue streams was accomplishing the goal of sustaining the organization. We had also just come off a successful negotiation with Comcast at that time in relation to their purchase of Southern Vermont Cable, which resulted in the station getting necessary upgrades to critical equipment.

That Memorandum of Understanding with Comcast was executed on March 3. Little did we know the challenges to come just 10 days later, with Vermont Governor Phil Scott issuing an emergency declaration and calling on businesses to shutter in the name of preventing the spread of COVID-19.

If one had not considered BCTV an "essential business" prior to the pandemic, that notion was quickly dispelled. As an August 20th op-ed in the Rutland Herald praising the role of Public, Education and Government (PEG) stations like BCTV noted, "What more could we ask for during a global emergency like this? We are blessed to have these community resources that provide timely news and information; function as a platform for community events; provide educational support; and offer technical assistance."

Cor and the staff performed heroically during this time period. They made personal sacrifices in order to provide services to the community. Not to be outdone, many of our member producers found innovative ways to continue providing the programming we all enjoy so much. While we are a far distance from returning to normal in any way, shape or form, I am so heartened by the efforts everyone has made to keep BCTV vital.

While the board's involvement in these matters has largely been in the background, we continue to evaluate ways that we can proactively support the station. I want to note in particular Leah Goodman, whose strong advocacy on behalf of the staff led to compensatory vacation days in light of time off restrictions during the shutdown; and Marty Cohn, who in addition to the media exposure he regularly garners for BCTV has spearheaded this year's "Meet the Candidates" series, including securing underwriting support from local businesses.

Meanwhile, the whole board grappled with the new menace of "Zoom-bombing" brought on by the shift to holding public meetings on videoconferencing platforms. In the end, we came up with a policy that we hope helps us protect members of our community who are threatened by white supremacy-fueled hate speech while preserving our commitment to transparency and First Amendment rights. All my fellow board members should be commended for the thoughtfulness and seriousness with which this situation was addressed.

I want to close by acknowledging three individuals who are rotating off the board: Jesse Kreitzer, whose expertise on matters related to equipment and software these past three years will be sorely missed; Jim Verzino, who served as treasurer and vice president during different points over nearly six years; and Pauline Dean, who joined the board at the same time I did and has been a rock-solid part of the leadership team in her capacity as board secretary. Thank you all, for your contributions to BCTV. It was an honor to serve with you.

From the Executive Director Cor Trowbridge

The headlines were already written for this fiscal year before COVID turned the world upside down.

Alternative funding sources established for BCTV

In response to threats to cable funding, the station instituted the following changes, which had a positive impact on our overall funding level for FY20.

- New fee structure for producing members
- New fee agreements with all towns in our service territory
- Successful annual fundraising appeal
- Production services charges adjusted to cover costs

Brattleboro Reformer, April 6, 2020

New channel numbers for BCTV; Comcast & Southern VT Cable service territories to be combined

Externally, there were two major developments that had substantial consequences for BCTV:

- Comcast assigned new channel numbers to all PEG stations in Vermont. Comcast's CPG was finalized in July (following a lawsuit), and one of the conditions was to place PEG channels information on the Interactive Program Guide, which required assigning unique channel numbers. The new numbers went live in February, with three months of overlap, so that Channels 8 and 10 were replaced by Channels 1075 and 1085 in May 2020.
- A joint petition was filed in December to sell all of Southern Vermont Cable's assets to Comcast. BCTV participated in the case before the Public Utilities Commission and entered into a MOU with Comcast for contract terms to go into effect upon the sale, which closed in May.

BCTV remains relevant in pandemic; perseveres as info portal

These were actual headlines written about BCTV's role in the COVID-19 shutdown. When the Governor's Emergency Order was announced, we closed the station and scrambled to get our home workstations and internet connections up to speed to meet the suddenly pressing demand for community technical support and production expertise. Local governments and boards turned to BCTV for assistance using online meeting tools, while we developed systems to air and archive online meetings to preserve transparency. News and information came flooding in from local and state agencies, which staff post-produced for cable. Nonprofit and educational institutions turned to BCTV to livestream virtual graduation ceremonies and performances. Without access to BCTV's studio and video production gear, community producers learned how to use online tools to produce and submit their shows. Brand new daily shows were created and distributed statewide, such as Peter "Fish" Case's "COVID -19: Call to Action" and "VT Senate President Tim Ashe Update." Upon returning to the office July 6, we stopped offering these services under emergency circumstances (no questions asked, any hour of the day or night) and started to incorporate them into our regular lineup of membership and production options.

This was the first year in many that BCTV did not receive awards for our work, and yet I could not be more proud of how our staff, board, and volunteers stepped up to meet the challenge of the COVID crisis. There's no way to recount the individual sacrifices that were made to deliver every ounce of assistance possible to our community, region, and state. The report "PEG Access Media: Local Communication Hubs in a Pandemic" documents the critical roles played by PEG stations nationwide; for stations like BCTV, the crisis has proven our importance as a critical community resource. We thank our members, supporters, and producers for making this level of service possible.

Donors and Underwriters

Like all public access TV stations, BCTV is funded primarily (75% of our income) by local cable subscriber fees. After the FCC weakened this funding mechanism, BCTV initiated a fundraising appeal in November 2019. FY20 was the first year that producers sought donations to assist with production costs for shows.

Members

BCTV had 50 active memberships in FY20. As of July 1, 2019, BCTV's membership structure was updated so that producing members pay according to the frequency and type of facilities they use, and organizational memberships were made the same as individual. Anyone who resides, works, attends school, or volunteers for a nonprofit in Windham County may become a member of BCTV and create local programs with BCTV's equipment and technical support.

Producers & Editors

BCTV had 65 active volunteer producers and organizations that submitted local programming this year. The list includes those who recorded and submitted online meetings as programs to be aired on BCTV, starting in March 2020. Video Production Training

BCTV offers training year-round on an individual basis for Camera Basics, Introduction to Digital Editing, and Studio Production. This has proven to be the most effective because instructors can tailor the training for experience and learning style. Trainees have staff support at BCTV as they work on their project.

Fiscal Year	# Trainings	# Certified

Virtual Youth Video Camp

Instead of creating our own virtual video camp, BCTV joined the Crowdsourced Cinema VT Project, which solicited videomaking teams statewide to submit their version of assigned scenes from the feature film "Cast Away." Three intrepid video campers joined Lead Instructor Frederic Noyes for two weeks of virtual training and planning before they got together to record the scene they were given to recreate. All of the submitted scenes will be edited together and premiered in October.

Equipment & Facilities Use

BCTV's field camera kits include the Canon Vixia, XA10 , XA20 and XA15. We have one DSLR, the Canon 80D with interchangeable lenses, for staff and producer use. Our asset management software shows an average of 8.6 uses of equipment or facilities per day the station was open in FY20.

Programming Hours

BCTV produces an average of 1200 hours of local content annually, which is equivalent to the output of much larger stations. Locally-created programs constitute approximately half of what you see on BCTV, measured both by duration (hours and minutes) and by count (number of programs). Vermont Media Exchange is BCTV's primary source of imported programming, which carries programs produced by community media stations across Vermont and shared through a statewide network.

Hours of First Run Programming	19-20 Hours: Mins: Secs	Change from 18-19	% Total
Channel 8/1075 – Local	579:49:56	4.9%	21.1

Total Imported Programming	1453:24:08	5.0%	52.9
TOTAL	2747:09:07	4.1%	100

Program Count

BCTV volunteers and staff produced 1573 local shows in FY20 or 51% of this year's aired programs.

Number of Programs Aired	2019-20	% Change from 18-19	% total
Local	1573	15.3	50.9
Imported	593	7.2	19.2
VMX	927	6.7	30.0
TOTAL:	3093	8.7	100

Another statistic we track is the amount of staff-produced programming. Channel 8/1075 programming is primary produced by volunteers, whereas the majority of Channel 10/1085 programs are staff-produced.
